WELCOME

Dear Media Member,

Thank you for your continued coverage of the New England Revolution.

The Communications and Digital Staffs have prepared the 2012 media guide to further assist you with your coverage of the team and Major League Soccer. Please note that while the information is current as of February 20, 2012, up-to-date information can be easily accessed at the team's official web site, revolutionsoccer.net. Additionally, the team's Twitter feed (@NERevolution) and Facebook page (facebook.com/nerrevolution) provide breaking news, video and features. Finally, for in-game coverage of all the Revs' teams (first-team, reserves and youth teams when available), follow the team's dedicated in-game Twitter feed: @NERevsLive.

Below you will find a brief summary of the departments' contacts and each staff member's areas of primary concentration to help expedite your requests. However, every member of the staff is available to help you with any request. Should you need anything further, please don't hesitate to contact us.

Thank you again and we're looking forward to working with you in 2012.

Sincerely,

Revolution Communications, Digital and Broadcasting Staffs

CLUB HISTORY

1995

On October 17, 1995, the New England Revolution was born. Behind the leadership of Investor/Operators Robert K. Kraft, Jonathan A. Kraft and the Kraft family, the Revolution was established as one of Major League Soccer's 10 original clubs with Foxboro Stadium as its home venue. U.S. internationals Alexi Lalas and Mike Burns - a Massachusetts native - were allocated to New England as the Revs' founding players.

1996

15-17 Overall

The Revolution began its inaugural campaign under head coach Frank Stapleton, fielding star players Burns, Lalas, Alberto Naveda, Welton, and, later in the season, Joe-Max Moore. The Revs' first MLS game was a 3-2 loss at Tampa Bay Mutiny on April 13, 1996, but New England came back a week later to earn its first victory, a 1-0 win over the MetroStars. The following weekend, the Revs prevailed in their first game at Foxboro Stadium, defeating eventual MLS Cup champion D.C. United, 2-1, in a shootout. The Revs missed out on the 1996 MLS playoffs, although Foxboro Stadium was the site of the inaugural MLS Cup.

1997

15-17 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

Thomas Rongen replaced Stapleton, who resigned at the conclusion of the 1996 season, as head coach. Rongen led the Revolution to the club's first-ever berth in the MLS Cup Playoffs, where the team fell to defending MLS Cup champion D.C. United. New England also led the league in attendance, with 342,762 fans watching Revolution soccer in 1997. The team made some notable acquisitions during Rongen's first year, including goalkeeper Walter Zenga and forward Giuseppe Galderisi.

11-21 Overall

In 1998, the team struggled throughout the club's third campaign as stalwarts Moore and Burns missed a substantial portion of the season with the U.S. National Team at the World Cup in France. The Revolution dropped nine straight games between May and early July. In August, Rongen and his staff resigned and Zenga, the Revs' goalkeeper, took over as player/coach. New England went 3-3 down the stretch. Off-season acquisition Raul Diaz Arce scored 18 goals to go along with eight assists, while Moore added seven goals and 15 assists.

12-20 Overall

Prior to the season, the Revolution acquired former U.S. Men's National Team captain John Harkes, Giovanni Savarese and Dan Calichman to help boost the team's bid to return to the playoffs. Zenga continued as player/coach, and the team made several acquisitions in mid-season - including Mario Gori, Leonel Alvarez and Jeff Baicher - but the team was unable to come together and make a run into the postseason. For the second consecutive year, the Revs made a late-season coaching change as Zenga was relieved of his playing and coaching duties and replaced by Steve Nicol for the team's final two matches. For the second time in four years, Foxboro Stadium hosted MLS Cup.

2000

13-13-6 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

Before the start of the 2000 campaign, Sunil Gulati, a longtime executive with Major League Soccer and U.S. Soccer, was named Managing Director of Kraft Soccer, Brian O'Donovan was appointed Chief Operating Officer and former U.S. National Team defender Fernando Clavijo was named head coach. MLS also moved to three four-team divisions and eliminated shootouts to decide games. The Revs finished second in the Eastern Conference and earned the club's second-ever MLS Cup Playoffs berth on the last day of the regular season, finishing with the best record in club history. Wolde Harris scored 15 goals while Imad Baba added nine goals and eight assists and Ted Chronopoulos had five goals. The Revs advanced to the MLS Cup Playoffs, but lost to the Chicago Fire.

2001

7-14-6 Overall

U.S. Open Cup Final (Fullerton, Calif.)

Among the Revs' newcomers for 2001 were Jamaican midfielder Andy Williams, Caté, a Brazilian playmaker, and Jay Heaps - the 1999 MLS Rookie of the Year and Massachusetts product - who was acquired in a mid-season trade. The Revolution went winless in its first six games and despite several strong stretches during the season, the team failed to qualify for the MLS Cup Playoffs. In the 2001 U.S. Open Cup, however, the Revolution advanced to the championship game against the LA Galaxy. On Oct. 27, in Fullerton, Calif., the Revs took an early 1-0 lead into the second half, but LA leveled the game and Danny Califf scored two minutes into extra time to clinch the title for the Galaxy.

2002

12-14-2 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

MLS Cup 2002 (Foxborough, Mass.)

The Tampa Bay Mutiny and the Miami Fusion ceased operations during the off-season, and the Revs acquired Steve Ralston in the resulting Allocation Draft. New England also took Taylor Twellman with the second pick in the MLS SuperDraft and acquired goalkeeper Adin Brown. The Revs went 1-2-1 on their season-opening road trip, before defeating the Dallas Burn 2-0 on May 11 in the first event held at the newly-constructed, $325 million Gillette Stadium. Twellman tallied twice in the win - two of his club single-season record 23 goals that season. Clavijo was fired on May 23, replaced on an interim basis by assistant coach Steve Nicol. The Revs went 5-0-1 down the stretch, clinching a playoff berth on the final day of the season. New England then defeated the Chicago Fire in the MLS Cup Quarterfinals, the club's first playoff series victory, before earning a series victory over Columbus in the Eastern Conference Championship to advance to MLS Cup 2002 at Gillette Stadium. An MLS Cup Playoffs record crowd of 61,316 saw the Revs lose to the Galaxy on a golden goal in the 113th minute. After earning MLS Coach of the Year honors, the Revs named Nicol head coach of the team on Nov. 6.

2003

12-9-9 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

Eastern Conference Final

Joe-Max Moore returned after a three-year stint with Everton in England, and the Revs also added key newcomers Pat Noonan, Shalrie Joseph and Matt Reis to the fold. The Revs struggled in the middle portion of the season, going two months without a win, and New England found itself mired in fifth place in early September. But the Revs went 6-0-1 to close the season and clinched second place in the Eastern Conference. Twellman (15 goals) was sidelined for the playoffs with a fractured left foot, and Noonan led the team to a victory over the MetroStars in the Eastern Conference Semifinals. In the Eastern Conference Final, the Revs missed the chance to return to MLS Cup when Chicago's Chris Armas scored the golden goal in the 11th minute of overtime. The Revs were the highest scoring team in MLS (55 goals) in the regular season.

2004

8-13-9 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

Eastern Conference Final

It was a rollercoaster season, with the Revs earning a 1-4-2 mark through April and May before stringing together a seven-game midsummer unbeaten run. Injuries to key players saw others like Andy Dorman and Matt Reis step up, but as September began, the Revs sat in last place. However, the Revs made another late-season push - going 3-2-0 down the stretch - and used a 2-1 home victory over Chicago on the last night of the season to clinch a playoff berth. New England defeated the Columbus Crew in the conference semifinals - helped by Reis' two penalty kick saves in Game Two of the series. The Revs then played D.C. in the Eastern Conference Final at RFK Stadium, a 3-1 thriller widely considered MLS' best match ever. New England lost to the eventual champions on penalty kicks after three times coming back from one-goal deficits, capped by Noonan's 85th minute equalizer. Also in 2004, Twellman scored his 42nd goal as a member of the Revolution to become the club's all-time leading goal scorer and Clint Dempsey earned MLS Rookie of the Year honors.

17-8 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

MLS Cup 2005 (Frisco, Texas)

The Revolution had its best regular season in club history, setting team records for wins (17) and points (59). The Revs also set records with their six-game winning streak that was part of the club-record 11-game unbeaten streak to open the season. In the MLS Cup Conference Semifinals the Revs again came from behind to defeat the MetroStars on aggregate to advance to the team's fourth Eastern Conference Championship in a row, where the Revs downed Chicago, 1-0, at home on a fourth-minute Dempsey goal. In MLS Cup 2005, the Revs fell to LA, 1-0, in double overtime. Despite the championship game loss, the team accumulated many individual accolades, including Twellman claiming MLS MVP honors, Dempsey, Shalrie Joseph and Twellman earning spots on the league's Best XI squad, and unheralded first-year defender Michael Parkhurst winning Rookie of the Year accolades.

2006

12-8-12 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

MLS Cup 2006 (Frisco, Texas)

Although the Revs returned the majority of their roster from the record-setting 2005 squad, a rash of injuries and international call-ups limited the Revs' early-season success. Dempsey (U.S.) and Avery John (Trinidad & Tobago) were both named to their countries' World Cup squads and missed seven weeks of MLS action. Nicol used a different starting 11 almost every game to contend with his personnel shortages, but in what had become an annual ritual, the Revs assembled another late-season run, going 5-0-2 to close the schedule and surge into the playoffs. The Revs defeated Chicago in the Eastern Conference Semifinal series, coming back from a two-goal aggregate deficit at home in Game Two to earn the series victory in penalty kicks. Against D.C. in the Eastern Conference Championship, the Revs downed United, 1-0, for the conference crown behind Twellman's fourth-minute strike to advance to MLS Cup at Pizza Hut Park in Frisco, Texas, for the third time in club history. The Houston Dynamo, however, was crowned champion after winning on penalty kicks, 4-3, after the 1-1 stalemate following extra time, during which Twellman's 113th-minute go-ahead goal in extra time was negated by a Brian Ching tally just over a minute later.

2007

14-8-8 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

U.S. Open Cup Champion

MLS Cup 2007 (Washington, D.C.)

The Revs resumed their place at or near the top of the Eastern Conference standings, finishing second after another consistent season under Nicol, the longest-tenured coach in MLS. Midyear, the team won its first-ever cup championship, winning the Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup behind a 3-2 victory at FC Dallas on Oct. 3 as rookie Wells Thompson scored the game-winner in the second half. The team uncharacteristically entered the playoffs winless in their final three regular-season matches, but once again reached the MLS Cup championship match, defeating the New York Red Bulls in the Eastern Conference Semifinal Series (1-0 on aggregate) and Chicago, 1-0 in the Revs' record-setting sixth consecutive Eastern Conference Championship match. At MLS Cup 2007, New England and Houston played the first-ever rematch of the previous year's final, with the Dynamo repeating the 2006 result and taking a 2-1 victory at RFK Stadium in Washington. Twellman scored his league-leading third playoff goal in the first half, but Houston struck twice in the second to repeat as champions.

2008

12-11-7 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

SuperLiga Champion

The Revolution reached the postseason for the seventh consecutive year with a third-place finish in the Eastern Conference, but an up-and-down campaign ended with a first-round playoff exit. Despite early-season injuries to Twellman and Ralston, the Revs soared to the top of the MLS standings with a 10-4-3 record through 17 games. During a month-long break from the league schedule in July, New England became the first MLS team to win SuperLiga, a feat that was capped by a remarkable victory over the Houston Dynamo in a penalty shootout in the competition's final on Aug. 5. However, fixture congestion and a rash of injuries slowed the Revolution late in the season, as the club went 2-7-4 during the final 13 games and slipped from first to third in the conference. For the fourth consecutive year, New England met the rival Chicago Fire in the playoffs – this time in the Eastern Conference Semifinals – but for the first time in that stretch, the Fire eliminated the Revs. A 3-0 aggregate loss in the two-game series ended the Revolution's season and snapped the club's record of six straight appearances in the conference final.

11-10-9 Overall

MLS Cup Playoffs

Once again, the Revolution reached the playoffs, pushing the league's longest active streak to eight straight seasons. With Twellman still out because of injury, the Revs recorded just two wins in the first nine games of the season. Twellman returned for two games, both of which the Revs won, but was the shelved for the rest of the season with effects from a concussion. New England advanced to the semifinals of SuperLiga 2009, falling to the Fire in the semifinals, and came out of the tournament hot, going 5-1-1 in the next seven league games to move up the East standings at the end of August. Despite winning just three games the rest of the season, the team advanced to the postseason on the heels of a 1-0 win on the road at Supporters Shield winner Columbus in the final game of the regular season. The Revs also extended their streak of meeting Chicago in the postseason, matching up against the Fire in the conference semifinals. After taking a 2-1 win at home in Game One, the Revs dropped a 2-0 decision on the road to bow out of the playoffs.

2010

9-16-5 Overall

SuperLiga runner-up

Shaped by retirements and ravaged by injuries for much of the 2010 season, the Revolution missed the MLS Cup Playoffs for the first time since 2001. Without key players like Jay Heaps (retired after 2009 season), Steve Ralston (left squad after 2009 season, returned mid-season and retired immediately), Matt Reis (offseason shoulder and knee surgeries), Taylor Twellman (concussion), Edgaras Jankauskas (series of injuries) and team captain Shalrie Joseph (series of strains, personal matters) for extended periods of time, New England registered just three wins in the 13 games leading up to the league's World Cup break in June. SuperLiga again proved to be a bright spot for the Revs, who advanced to the final but ultimately dropped a 2-1 decision to Mexican side Monarcas Morelia. Serbian forward Marko Perovic, who signed with the Revolution in late March, was joined in New England by countryman Ilija Stolica in late July. The pair left their mark on the latter part of the season, registering a goal and/or assist in five of the nine regular-season games following SuperLiga. Going 3-4-2 during that stretch, the Revs settled into sixth place in the Eastern Conference and failed to qualify for the postseason.

2011

5-16-13 Overall

The Revolution missed the MLS Cup Playoffs for the second year in a row following a season in which the squad's five-win total set a new club low. Shalrie Joseph continued to set the scoring pace for the team with a team-high eight goals, but it was newcomers Rajko Lekic (six goals, one assist), Benny Fellhaber (four goals, team-high seven assists) and the club's first-ever Homegrown player – 16-year old Diego Fagundez (two goals, one assist) – who made headlines after joining the team. Additionally, the team added its first-ever Designated Player in Argentine striker Milton Caraglio (three goals, two assists in 12 games). Despite positive contributions from the team's newer players, the Revs finished tied for last in MLS with 28 points, and last in the Eastern Conference. Following the season, head coach Steve Nicol parted ways with the team, ending his MLS-record 10-year run with the club as he departed with 301 games under his belt as head coach.

GILLETTE STADIUM

On May 11, 2002, Gillette Stadium opened its doors as the new home of the New England Revolution and has become one of the best home fields in all of Major League Soccer. With annual world-class soccer events staged at the facility, Gillette Stadium has also become the hub of soccer in the Northeast region.

Entering the 2012 season, the Revs have posted a 71-46-36 record (.582 winning percentage) in the confines of Gillette Stadium during the regular season, and a 9-1-4 postseason mark, including MLS Cup 2002 before 61,316 fans, an MLS Cup Playoffs attendance record.

The team's combined 80 home victories in the regular season and postseason since the beginning of the 2002 season are third in Major League Soccer, and the Revs' nine home playoff wins are second in the league behind LA (13).

On an international level, U.S. Soccer has enjoyed some of its greatest success on home turf at Gillette Stadium with the men's and women's national teams posting a combined 11-2-2 record at Gillette Stadium. On May 19, 2002, the U.S. Men's National Team played its final game on U.S. soil before the 2002 World Cup, facing European powerhouse, the Netherlands. On April 14, 2007, the U.S. women kicked off their final domestic tour before the 2007 Women's World Cup with a 5-0 victory over Mexico. Gillette Stadium has also hosted matches in the 2003, 2005, 2007 and 2009 CONCACAF Gold Cups with the U.S. men going undefeated (6-0-2) at the stadium in that span.

While the U.S. has seen great success in Foxborough – a 20-2-5 mark overall including matches at the former Foxboro Stadium – the facility has also hosted other world-class soccer events. On Sept. 12, 2007, the men's national teams of Brazil and Mexico played before a record crowd of 67,684 – the largest soccer crowd ever at the stadium and in New England. Other international powerhouses who have played at Gillette Stadium include Ireland and Bolivia.

Gillette Stadium has been the site of several memorable international club friendlies, including matches between European giants Barcelona and Juventus on Sunday, July 27, 2003; Chelsea and A.C. Milan on July 24, 2005; and A.C. Milan and Internazionale on July 26, 2009. Most recently, the Revolution took on Manchester United on July 14, 2011 before more than 50,000 fans from all over the world. Other international Gillette Stadium's predecessor - Foxboro Stadium - helped begin the tradition of world-class soccer in the region. Foxboro Stadium hosted 10 U.S. Men's National Team games, where the U.S. posted a 7-0-3 all-time record. The town of Foxborough, between Foxboro Stadium and Gillette Stadium, has also played host to men's and women's World Cup Qualifiers, 1994 FIFA World Cup matches, 1999 and 2003 FIFA Women's World Cup matches, international friendly matches and Women's Gold Cup games since 1991.

FieldTurf was laid at Gillette Stadium at the conclusion of the 2006 season. It was later replaced with FieldTurf's latest technology – the FieldTurf Duraspine PRO system – in the spring of 2010, making it the first facility in North America to install the new system. Gillette Stadium's surface is FIFA 2-Star rated, and was re-certified in September 2011.

A crowd of 67,684 watched as the men's national teams of Brazil and Mexico played at Gillette Stadium on Sept. 12, 2007. The attendance figure set a New England record for soccer, and eclipsed the previous stadium mark of 61,316 (MLS Cup 2002 on Oct. 20, 2002).

ROBERT K. KRAFT

Investor/Operator

Robert Kraft is the Founder, Chairman and CEO of The Kraft Group, based in Foxborough, Mass. The Kraft Group is the holding company of the Kraft family's many businesses, with interests concentrated in six areas: manufacturing of paper and packaging, international distribution of forest products, sports and entertainment, real estate development, private equity investing and philanthropy.

Kraft is widely recognized as one of the most successful owners in professional sports. As Investor/Operator of the New England Revolution (Major League Soccer) and Chairman and CEO of the New England Patriots (National Football League), Kraft has helped change the culture of professional sports in New England by delivering a combined 10 conference titles and three league championships in the past 16 years. In addition to building two championship-driven franchises, Kraft has committed the resources necessary to create a world-class sports and entertainment complex with his privately-financed construction of Gillette Stadium, as well as the development of Patriot Place.

Kraft's long-standing support of soccer in the United States dates back to his efforts in the early 1990s to secure Foxborough as one of the nine host venues for the 1994 FIFA World Cup. The success of the 1994 World Cup ushered in a new era in New England sports and on June 6, 1995, the Kraft family became the founding Investor/Operator of the Revolution, joining Major League Soccer for its inaugural season in 1996. Since then, the Krafts have hosted the MLS Cup championship game in Foxborough three times, including the 2002 final between the Revolution and the Los Angeles Galaxy, which was played in front of the largest crowd in MLS Cup history (61,316).

The United States' Men's and Women's National soccer teams have also enjoyed tremendous support from the Kraft family and soccer fans throughout New England. In 2011, a crowd of 64,121 fans – a Men's National Team record in New England – were in the Gillette Stadium stands as the U.S. faced defending FIFA World Cup champion Spain.

Since 1990, Foxborough has hosted 30 international matches involving U.S. teams at Foxboro Stadium (1990-2001) and Gillette Stadium (2002-present). The U.S. teams have enjoyed remarkable success in those games, compiling a combined record of 22-2-6. In addition to hosting games in the 1994 Men's World Cup, Foxborough was a host city for both the 1999 Women's World Cup and the 2003 Women's World Cup. In 1999, more than 50,000 fans watched the U.S. women defeat North Korea, 3-0, in the Women's World Cup.

Kraft is a lifelong New England sports fan who began attending Boston Patriots games during their infancy in the 1960s. When the franchise moved to Foxborough in 1971, he purchased season tickets for his family, an account he maintained for the next 23 years before purchasing the team in 1994.

The Kraft family has built the Patriots into one of professional sports' model organizations. Since purchasing the team in 1994, the Patriots have won more games (212), including more playoff games (19), more conference championships (6) and more Super Bowls (3) than any other team in the NFL. The Patriots also own two records for the longest consecutive win streaks in NFL history with 21 straight victories (including playoff games) and 10 straight playoff wins. Since 2001, the Patriots' .761 regular season winning percentage is not just the highest in the NFL, but is the highest among any team in the five largest professional sports leagues in the U.S. (including MLB, MLS, NBA, NFL and NHL).

Kraft began his business career with the Rand-Whitney Group, Inc. of Worcester, Mass., a company that converted paper into packaging for various industries. He later acquired the company. In 1972, he founded International Forest Products, a trader of paper commodities that now does business in more than 90 countries. Together, Rand-Whitney and International Forest Products comprise one of the largest privately-owned paper and packaging companies in the United States. The Kraft Group's holdings include the Rand-Whitney Group, Rand-Whitney Containerboard, International Forest Products, the New England Patriots, the New England Revolution, Gillette Stadium, Patriot Place and a portfolio of more than 30 private equity investments.

A native of Brookline, Mass., Kraft attended public schools before matriculating to Columbia on an academic scholarship. Upon graduation, he received a fellowship to Harvard Business School, where he earned a master's degree in business administration.

Kraft serves on the board of directors for Viacom. He is also on the executive committee of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, where he established the Robert K. Kraft Family Blood Donor Center. He is a trustee emeritus at Columbia and is a trustee of Boston College. He has also received honorary degrees from several colleges and universities. The Theodore Roosevelt Award, which is presented annually to a distinguished citizen of national reputation with outstanding accomplishments, and his induction into the American Academy of Arts and Sciences are among two of the many esteemed honors and awards that he has received.

Over the past four decades, the Kraft family has been one of New England's most philanthropic families, donating over $100 million dollars in support of local charities and civic affairs. The Krafts recently pledged $20 million to Partners HealthCare to launch the Kraft Family National Center for Leadership and Training in Community Health, an initiative designed to improve access to quality healthcare at community health centers throughout New England. In Foxborough, a $1 million donation by the Krafts helped fund the Kraft Family Center at the local branch of the YMCA, which was part of an expansion project that tripled the size of the center.

JONATHAN A. KRAFT

Investor/Operator

Jonathan Kraft is the President of The Kraft Group, based in Foxborough, Mass.

The Kraft Group is the holding company of the Kraft family's many businesses, with interests concentrated in six areas: manufacturing of paper and packaging, international distribution of forest products, sports and entertainment, real estate development, private equity investing and philanthropy.

In its sports and entertainment division, The Kraft Group's holdings include the four-time conference champion New England Revolution and the three-time Super Bowl champion New England Patriots, as well as Gillette Stadium, the world-class venue that both franchises call home. Kraft oversees the operation of all three sports entities.

As an Investor/Operator of the New England Revolution, Kraft has guided the organization from its infancy to its present position as one of the most successful and respected teams in Major League Soccer. In 1995, Kraft was involved in securing the Revolution as one of Major League Soccer's founding clubs and was principally responsible for bringing the MLS's inaugural championship game to New England in 1996. Since then, the Krafts have hosted two more MLS Cup championship games in Foxborough, including the 2002 final between the Revolution and the Los Angeles Galaxy, which was played in front of the largest crowd in MLS Cup history.

As the President of the Patriots, Kraft has been the day-to-day driving force behind the rebuilding and rebranding of the franchise since 1994, bringing long-overdue stability to the once wayward organization. It has been a remarkable transformation, as the Patriots have evolved from worst to first in many categories, both on and off the field. Over the past 18 seasons, the Patriots have won more games (212) than any other franchise, including more Super Bowls (3) and conference championships (6). The Patriots also own two of the NFL's longest consecutive win streaks, winning 21 straight (including playoffs) over two seasons (2003-04) and 10 consecutive victories in the playoffs.

In 1999, Kraft developed the creative private-financing strategy to gain approval for the construction of Gillette

Stadium. Throughout the stadium initiative, no one was more involved in each phase of the project, including the planning, construction, opening and on-going operation and development of Gillette Stadium. Kraft worked closely with stadium designers to create a world-class sports and entertainment facility that would highlight features indigenous to New England. His team delivered on the promise of a fan-friendly facility, on time and under budget.

Kraft and the project team also drew praise for innovative environmental practices. In June of 2001, the Environmental Business Council presented The Kraft Group with the Environmental Award for Corporate Leadership. In May of 2002, The Kraft Group received New England's Environmental Merit Award from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the development and construction of Gillette Stadium. On May 11, 2002, the Krafts opened Gillette Stadium, now known as one of the world's premier sports and entertainment facilities, with a match between the New England Revolution and the Dallas Burn. One week later, the U.S. Men's National Team made its first appearance at Gillette Stadium. On Oct. 20, 2002, MLS Cup returned to Foxborough for the third time in seven years, with the Revolution vying for the league's top honors in front of an MLS Cup record crowd of 61,316 fans.

A Williams College graduate, Kraft also earned an MBA from Harvard Business School. He is on the board of directors for several organizations, including the Children's Hospital Trust and Pop Warner Little Scholars, Inc. He is also currently serving as a member of the Overseers' Committee to Visit Harvard Business School and as a member of the board of trustees at Massachusetts General Hospital, Williams College and the Belmont Hill School.

Kraft is active in youth athletics, coaching Pop Warner football, youth soccer and Little League baseball in the greater Boston area. In 2006, he was the recipient of the Warner Award, named after Glenn S. "Pop" Warner. The award is presented annually and is considered Pop Warner's highest honor.

Kraft and his wife, Patti, have three children.

BRIAN BILELLO
President

Brian Bilello is in his first season as President of the New England Revolution. After serving six seasons as the club's Chief Operating Officer, he was promoted to his current position in November 2011.

As President, Bilello oversees all aspects of the club's operations, including both the team's business activities and its soccer operations. In addition to establishing the club's strategic vision and plan and fostering its implementation across the organization, he reports directly to the Kraft Family and represents the club on the MLS Board of Governors.

As Chief Operating Officer, Bilello oversaw all aspects of the team's business operations, including sales, communications, marketing, broadcasting, special events and operations. Among his accomplishments during his tenure as COO, Bilello expanded all of the Revolution's business departments, oversaw the integration of the team's jersey sponsor – UnitedHealthcare – and launched a dedicated ticket sales service group that won the MLS Presidents Cup in 2011 for season-ticket holder renewal rates.

He was also a member of the former MLS Business Development Committee, which helped develop MLS' policies relating to the League's inclusive broadcasting packages (both national and regional), jersey sponsorships, stadium commerce and retail operations, among many other initiatives.

Prior to accepting the COO role with the Revolution, Bilello served the Revolution, Patriots and Gillette Stadium in a variety of operational and strategic roles. He joined the organization in 2003 as Director of Quality and Operational Control, where he worked to improve the fan experience across all areas of Gillette Stadium. He has also run both the concessions and retail operations, and has provided strategic advice to the Kraft Family on a number of issues related to their sports ventures, in particular, MLS and the Revolution. In addition to his role with the Revolution, Bilello previously worked on other aspects of The Kraft Group's operations, including the New England Patriots, Gillette Stadium, Patriot Place and other new business ventures.

Prior to working with The Kraft Sports Group, Bilello was a management consultant at Bain & Company in the company's San Francisco and Boston offices where he worked with clients in the retail, consumer products and entertainment industries.

An avid soccer player, Bilello played varsity soccer at MIT, where he studied engineering and economics. Before joining the organization's staff, Bilello was a Revolution season ticket holder.

Bilello lives in southern Massachusetts with his wife, Vanessa, and two young daughters, Samantha (7) and Madison (5), and continues to play organized soccer in his free time.

MICHAEL BURNS
General Manager

Michael Burns enters his eighth season with the New England Revolution, and his first as the team's General Manager. He was promoted to his new role in November 2011 after four seasons as the team's Vice President of Player Personnel.

As General Manager, Burns leads all aspects of the club's soccer operations, which now includes the coaching staff, player acquisitions and scouting, in addition to continuing his oversight of the youth development program and the team's operations and management.

The former Revs defender and team captain returned to the club at the start of the 2005 season as the Director of Soccer before earning a promotion to Vice President of Player Personnel in 2008.

A true New England soccer legend, Burns was born and raised in nearby Marlborough, and was the Massachusetts High School Player of the Year in 1987 following his senior season at Marlborough High School. After a standout career at Hartwick College (1988-91), Burns became a regular for the U.S. National Team, earning 75 caps and starting two games for the U.S. in the 1998 FIFA World Cup. He was also a member of the 1994 U.S. World Cup squad.

Burns was the first player in U.S. Soccer history to represent the United States at every level of FIFA-sanctioned tournaments: Under-16 World Cup (Canada 1987), Under-20 World Cup (Saudi Arabia 1989), Olympic Games (Barcelona 1992) and World Cup (United States 1994, France 1998).

Burns was allocated to the Revolution in 1995 at the inception of MLS and he played for – and captained – New England from 1996 to 2000, before finishing his playing career with the San Jose Earthquakes (2000) and the Kansas City Wizards (2001-02). Overall, he made 169 appearances, scoring three goals and adding 21 assists. Burns also played for Viborg in the Super League in Denmark in 1995 before joining MLS.

In addition to his day-to-day duties with the Revolution, Burns serves on U.S. Soccer's Referee Committee, MLS' Technical Committee, MLS' Combine Committee and MLS' working group on officiating. Prior to returning to the Revolution in a management capacity, Burns served on the MLS Disciplinary Committee, and was also a member of U.S. Soccer's Board of Directors and the U.S. Soccer Athlete Counsel.

Burns holds a USSF "A" coaching license. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Boys and Girls Club of MetroWest that includes Marlborough, Hudson and Framingham.

Burns lives in the suburbs west of Boston with his wife, Jen, and their three children: Kayla (12), Trevor (10) and Garrett (6).
